DIGITAL SCHOOL OF VIRTUAL AND OPEN LEARNING (DISVOL)

The Digital School of Virtual and Open Learning (DSVOL) is the youngest of the fifteen schools in the University, having been established from the former Open Distance and e-Learning Institute. The creation of this School is embedded in the University's long and cogent tradition of outreach and the noble desire to promote educational opportunity by widening access to higher education through virtual learning environment and blended open learning. This is to cater for students who are unable to study in the University through the traditional full-time on campus mode.

The Digital School of Virtual and Open Learning is positioning itself to become a centre of excellence and the preferred School of choice in promoting educational opportunity by providing quality higher education, training and professional development to meet the learning needs of our many constituencies, through e-Learning grounded in the use of modern technologies. This is borne out of recognition that learning is moving out of the classroom and into the learners’ environment, both real and virtual, and technology is central to this inevitable and indispensable transformation.
